

KEIM GRANITAL

A classic solution for reliable architectural protection with highly technical silicate technology

Keim Granital is a water repellent, ready-to-apply, exterior silicate paint that may be used on any mineral substrate.

Extremely long lasting, environmentally friendly, vapour permeable and lightfast, Keim Granital is suitable for all forms of unpainted mineral substrates and for redecoration of sound, previously painted surfaces.

Due to its outstanding product characteristics, Keim Granital is particularly suitable both for the renovation of old surfaces and in new construction. It protects mineral substrates from severe environmental influences such as acidic atmospheric conditions, and may be used in conjunction with other products of the coordinated Keim Granital system to meet the most varied requirements. Keim Granital is a sought-after coating for the refurbishment of heritage buildings, where facades require a breathable yet protective finish.

The Keim Granital coating is a natural system, the principle advantages being the longevity, natural appearance and breathability of the coating system.
